TWO HURT AS SLED HIT AUTO

First Collision Accident of Season on Delaware Avenue Friday. Afternoon—Two Boys Cut About Head but Not Seriously Injured.

Michael Ambrose of No. 19 Cordis street and Joseph Lemister of No. 11 Cordis street were badly cut about the head late Friday afternoon when the sled on which they were riding down the Delaware avenue hill struck an automobile driven by John Frederick of R. F. D. No. 4 at the intersection of North street.

Dr. John F. Larkin, who was summoned, found that the Ambrose boy had received a bad cut over the right eye and may have been injured internally. He took the boy to his home in his automobile. The Lemister boy, who also was cut about the head, had gone home before Dr. Larkin reached the scene.

According to the report of Police Arthur Dempsey, who investigated the accident, the sled had been riding down the hill at that time the boys came coasting down the hill. Mr. Frederick was passing by his auto on North street and the sled containing the two lads struck the side of the automobile.

LICENSE NUMBERS ARE ASSIGNED

By Which Source of Registration May be Found in Key List—11,325 Motor Vehicles in Ulster County.

Albany, Dec. 9.—In continuance of the policy established last year, the state tax commission today assigned the full list of numbers assigned to each county in the state in connection with the distribution of automobile license plates for 1923. At the same time, the commission urged automobile owners in all parts of the state to take advantage of the facilities now provided for securing their new license plates, which must be used on all cars driven in the state after January 1, and not to run the risk of inconvenient delays if the matter is left to the last day or two.

The list of numbers assigned to the various counties has been sent to the state police, the police officials of all cities and others interested. By use of the key list the source of registration of any car may be determined by the number of the license plate.

The new purple and white plates are now being distributed by all county clerks except in Albany, Erie and the counties in Greater New York. In these counties the distribution is now being made from the offices of the Motor Vehicle Bureau in Albany, Buffalo and Manhattan.

For Ulster county there are estimated 8,000 pleasure cars and the license plate numbers assigned are from 629-201 to 637-200; commercial cars, 2-200, license numbers 1-035-551 to 1-037-750; omnibuses, 900, license numbers 084-876 to 085-775; trailers, 25, license numbers 1-303-021 to 1-303-045; motorcycles, 200, license numbers 25-626 to 25-825. TUGBOAT STRIKE FAILS TO HALT COAL BARGES

Fifteen Men Quit When Bonus is Discontinued.

Serious trouble among the tugboat workers employed on the boats of the Cornell Steamboat Company, which transports coal to this city from Jersey points, was threatened Friday when fifteen workers, fifteen men, walked out because of a wage difference. At a late hour last night, however, all of the company's twelve tugs were running, says the New York Herald this morning.

The difference was due to the bonus scheme devised last month by the company, according to President Frederick Coykendall, who said that just before election day a number of trouble makers attempted to force a walkout. To keep his men satisfied he offered them a ten dollar bonus for the month of November, making their wages $80 a month and board. The increase, he said, was for only one month and the dissatisfied workers demand that they receive a similar bonus for December, which is not forthcoming.

The men who walked out yesterday attempted to intimidate a number of other men hired by Mr. Coykendall and stood on the block in Fifty-first street near the company's office. The new workers were put into taxicabs and taken to the office, and went right to work. At the steamboat company's offices last night those in charge professed ignorance of any walkout of any kind and pointed to where some of their tugs were working.

K. H. S. A.'S BEST ENTERTAINMENT

Held Friday Evening—Ross Vogt Gave Cup as Most Popular Athlete and Soners is Best High Kicker.

The annual Athletic Association entertainment, held Friday evening at the high school, proved a booming success from beginning to end. A crowd of some three hundred was present and the closing hour found all fully satisfied with the manner in which the committee in charge carried out its promise to have something really worth while.

The party opened up with dancing, music being furnished by Jett's Orchestra. After the affair had gotten in full swing, the music stopped and notice was given to adjourn to the auditorium, where the entertainment was to be held. The first act was a balancing act, Max Zimmer, famous equilibrist from New York, performing many skillful tricks with chairs, burning paper cones and tables. The hearty applause of the audience was won when he stuck nine chairs together, one on top of the other and balanced them on his chin. The next act was an impersonation of Harry Lauder, Mr. Dixon, a local man, singing several Scotch songs, the closing act, which proved to be the most humorous and entertaining of all was by William Cogan, also of New York. Mr. Cogan did some fancy roller skating, interspersing the more skillful parts with bits of comedy.

Despite the fact that this was a party, the athletics of the school were not forgotten. On entering, each person was given a ticket, upon which he wrote the name of the fellow whom he considered the best all-around athlete in the school. The stub attached to the ticket was retained for future reference, the number on it being the important thing for the holder. The balloting stopped when the crowd adjourned to the auditorium and the tellers got busy counting out the ballots. After the entertainment was finished, President McLane announced the decision of the students, Ross Vogt being the one chosen as the school's most popular athlete. Vogt has been prominent in athletics since he entered high school, representing the class on the basketball court in his freshman year. The next year he made the Midget basketball team and the varsity baseball team. Last year he represented the school in all three of the major sports, football, basketball and baseball. This year he played quarter on the gridiron in a manner that has won the admiration of all those along the valley who saw him play. He is now again in the race for a place on the court team, and has been chosen by his fellow players of the 1922 team to captain the basketball squad. His passing, kicking and running ability on the gridiron, his steady eye and consistent playing on the cap, and his dependability on first or at the plate and heavy hitting on the diamond have given him a record that well shows he deserves the honor accorded him by the students. As a token of appreciation he was presented with a silver loving cup by the Athletic Association. President McLane making the presentation.

Winners of the door prizes were Miss Margaret Finn and Maurice Baker. Each was given a gold Ever-sharp pencil.

Returning again to the gymnasium to resume the dance, the merry-makers found a surprise awaiting them. Each person was given a paper cap, and soon the crowd wore all Washington or Napoleons with different hued headpieces. Dancing continued for about a half an hour, then the floor was cleared for another brief entertainment.

The Misses Margaret Richards and Helen Talbot each giving an interpretive dance. The dancing was again begun following this entertainment, all thinking that the specialties were at an end, but they were very much mistaken, for what would any party be without a "Midnight Revue?"

To the delight of everyone, Chairman Davis announced that they had secured the services of "Alld Cukoo," whom everyone was certain was some very famous dancer from Paris or the bright lights district.

The beautiful, graceful dancer who took the floor, enraptured the spectators with her marvelous ability to race about and kick. Hereafter, no one need worry about the probability of success of our athletes, for "Alld Cukoo" was none other than the star half-back of this season's football team, "Pannanans" Souris. It is needless to say that this great dancing act was the hit of the evening.

Following this brief period of side-splitting hilarity dancing by all was again resumed until the clock's hands moved around to eleven, when the party broke up, everyone wearing a smile on the way home and carrying a happy heart. In all this was the biggest party ever given by the Athletic Association.

Members of the board of education and the high school faculty chaperoned the dancing.

SHOT FOUR TIMES; PROBATION OFFICER CHASES SHOOTER

Farm Hand Attempts to Murder Rhinebeck Farmer But Latter Shows Unusual Vitality.

Augustus Shaw, prosperous Rhinebeck farmer, after being hit by four bullets, gave chase to his would-be murderer Thursday evening, on his farm at Rhinebeck. From the story told by Shaw after he went to the Thompson Hospital at Rhinebeck, he was milking a cow when a man who was employed on a neighboring farm approached him and after a brief conversation started to riddle him with bullets.

The first shot hit Shaw at the base of the neck, the second penetrated the wrist, the third went along the side of the neck and as he arose a fourth shot penetrated the left side of the farmer. Unmindful of the bleeding wounds he pursued him, but gave up the chase when the sheriff was notified. Robbery is thought to be the motive. Search is being made for the Hungarian farm hand, who gave his name as Frank Becker. Shaw, who is past forty, is a puzzle to the physicians, as no bullets can be located and the deep wounds do not seem to weaken his condition.

NEW ASTORIA TO RISE FROM ASHES

By Telegrams to The Freeman. Astoria, Ore., Dec. 9.—Out of adversity and from the charred and smoldering ruins of the $15,000,000 fiery holocaust which swept thirty business blocks, will today be fashioned the plans for a greater Astoria.

Reconstruction is believed to have been responsible for the fire and a searching investigation is under way to determine those responsible. "The city by the sea"—founded April 12, 1811, by John Jacob Astor, American merchant—is preparing to rise from its ashes and to become one of the great harbors of the Pacific coast.

This morning, the prominent citizens, after a day and night of terror and sorrow, met in the fire-riddled city hall and pledged their hearts and worldly goods for the relief of the destitute and rebuilding of the town.

Ready cash and bread—shipped here by Portland bankers and bakers—are filling the most needed wants. Four banks and all the bakeries were gorged by the hungry flames.

Relief organizations are caring for 2,000 homeless people. Soldiers from Fort Stevens are guarding the ruins from looters. The curious are pouring into town by hundreds from surrounding communities.

Dance At Mann's Hall. Tonight the usual Saturday night dance will take place at Mann's hall, downtown. Life's orchestra will furnish the music.

The snow storm of the other night, which was followed by rain, and freezing weather, has made the hills of the city glazes of ice and afforded fine coasting for the youngsters who promptly took advantage of it. PREMIERS START INDEMNITY TALK

Belgium And Italy Support French In Wanting To Discuss War Debt — "Diplomatic Poker Game Begins."

By Telegrams to The Freeman.

London, Dec. 9.—With France playing the role of aggressor and Great Britain the role of mediator, the conference of allied premiers got under way at noon here today in an effort to work out a "final" solution of the grave German indemnity problem.

The United States is not participating in the meeting.

France insists that inter-allied war debts be taken up along with reparations. Belgium and Italy are supporting the French program.

Premier Poincare, of France, is understood to have brought a plan from Paris which proposes reduction of German indemnity to about $10,000,000,000 (excluding the $2,000,000,000 Germany has already paid). If war debts are cancelled, France will consent to a limited moratorium for Germany. If the allies reach an agreement for further guarantees to be imposed upon the German nation.

The thick murky fog which filled the London streets symbolized the atmosphere of uncertainty which overhung the conference when it opened.

During the morning Premier A. Bonar Law, of England, held private meetings with Premier Poincare of France, and Premier Mussolini of Italy.

It was understood that Mussolini told Bonar Law that Italy was unwilling to show "undue leniency" towards Germany. He pointed out that Italy could well understand France's claims for indemnity for two reasons: first, because the money was needed to repair the devastation wrought by the German armies on French soil; second, because the Germans would have to undergo severe punishment for her responsibility.

Mussolini was an early riser and was already at work with his secretary when Premier Bonar Law arrived shortly after 9 o'clock. He received the British statesman courteously, but explained that he was very busy and could discuss affairs only briefly as he had much more work to do.

Bonar Law remained only a short time and then Mussolini again plunged into his task which consisted chiefly of reports on Germany's economic situation.

Advises from Berlin telling of Germany's new plan for meeting her financial obligations under the Versailles treaty were too meagre to enable the premiers to discuss them in detail. The indications were that the French and Belgians would lead in the opposition to them because their demand for indemnity reduction was considered excessive.

It is believed here that Germany could not make good her promise to raise an internal loan of from $5,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000. Many Allied statesmen believe that the United States is the only source from which Germany could obtain a loan big enough to enable her to balance her budget, stabilize the mark and pay up her reparations bill.

The next session of the conference promised to be taken up with "fencing" with the various premiers trying to find out how far the others will go in making concessions without revealing their own hands. It was typical "diplomatic poker."

While Bonar Law announced that the British were willing to discuss indemnity and war debts at the same time, and intimated that the new British cabinet will go further than Lloyd George did in meeting the French viewpoint, there were indications that England is not prepared to go to the lengths suggested by Poincare for controlling German resources.

Worthily Honored.

A period of 400 years has elapsed since Omer Sebastian del Cano returned to Seville, Spain, after having circumnavigated the world for the first time. His wonderful voyage took four years all but 14 days and he arrived back at his home port on September 6.

In honor of his memory the Spanish government held a fête on his birthplace at Guetaria at which Great Britain was officially represented.

Sebastian sailed in 1519 with Magellan, and when that Portuguese navigator was killed, soon after discovering the straits which bear his name, succeeded to the command and completed the voyage of circumnavigation. Drake's voyage was not made until 1577-80. Del Cano's memory is rightly treasured in Spain, and until just before the war a ship of the Spanish navy bore his name.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY

The important food for any table at any meal is good bread; that baking, the meal cannot be a success. Good bread-making requires skill and carefulness. The first requisite is good flour; this is made from spring wheat; the hard wheat contains more gluten than the soft winter wheat and makes a bread which keeps moist longer. Both mills and water may be used in bread-making; milk and to the nutritive value and adds creamer but; however, it is not a satisfactory for good bread. A cup-mashed potato added to the sponge and the potato water instead of milk, gives a very fine bread. Keep the sponge kneaded, cut down and roll leaves letting them rise until than double in bulk, then bake moderate oven long enough to insure the thorough baking of the bread is important. Cool without wrapping before putting away.

Cinnamon Rolls.—Roll out bread sponge as thin as possible, spread with butter and sprinkle with cinnamon and brown sugar mixed. Roll up and cut into inch slices. Arrange in a baking pan closely, sprinkles sugar and cinnamon over the top and moisten with a little milk when very light, just before going into the oven. Bake until a golden brown.

Bread Sponge Fruit Cake.—To one cupful of bread sponge add one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of shortening, two well-beaten eggs, a little salt, one cupful of flour, one-half tea spoonful each of cinnamon and cloves, the same of nutmeg, one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in one tablespoonful of hot water. Add fruit and mix to taste, let rise one-half hour in a warm place and bake slowly for an hour.

As eggs are increasing in price an one-half teaspoonful of baking powder for each egg white cut down in the recipe for cake.

Building contracts awarded during November in the twenty-seven Northeastern States (which include about three-fourths of the total construction in the country) amounted to $248,368,000, according to the F. DWYERS FINISH GRAIN BOAT JOB

Dwyer Bros., boatbuilders, have now completed their last grain boat for the New York Central Lines and it will be delivered five weeks ahead of the contract time. There were two classes of boats built, five to carry 20,000 bushels of grain each, and five to carry 30,000 bushels each. It has taken nearly one million feet of prime yellow pine lumber, all having been inspected by New York lumber inspectors and to the satisfaction of Allan P. Pollock, the N. Y. C. marine inspector. These vessels have attracted the attention of many boatmen around New York harbor and are pronounced as being the best model of any grain boat yet seen in the harbor. The railroad officials have pronounced the work being first-class in every way and indications are that the company will bring more work to Kingston.

RUTGERS MUSICAL CLUBS AT HIGH SCHOOL DEC. 29.

The Alumni Association of Kingston High School has secured the services of the Rutgers College Musical Clubs for a concert to be held at the High School Auditorium on Friday, December 29.

This organization has in the past few years acquired an enviable reputation in musical circles, a fact proven by its record for the past two years.

The programs given by the clubs are enlivened with a certain amount of informality peculiar to college functions, a feature which makes the concert an audience interest. About 40 men have carried several of the more popular songs in their particular line of entertainment.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

The funeral of Mrs. Agnes Reichert, 14 Susan street, at St. Mary's Church at 9:30 a.m. where a high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of her soul. The Rev. Joseph B. Duffy was the celebrant. At the conclusion of the Mass, Miss Frances Gaudy sang very feelingly. "Pie Jesu." Father Fagan conducted the service at St. Mary's Cemetery, where the body was interred in the family plot.

Elizabeth Ann Houghtaling, wife of the late Nathan B. Divine, died on Friday at the home of her nephew, Thomas D. Houghtaling, at Hurley. She formerly lived in Modena, and is survived by two nephews, Thomas D. Houghtaling of Hurley, and two nieces, Elma C. wife of Dr. J. D. W. Diamond, of Olive Bridge, and Elizabeth, wife of Anson Crispell of this city. The funeral will be held from the home of her nephew where she died, on Monday morning at 11 o'clock. Interment in the Modena cemetery.

Interfered With Fire Chief.

William J. Burns of Abel street was arrested Friday afternoon by Officer Kuehn on a charge of interfering with Fire Chief Chipp who was on his way to the fire at the Clinton Garage. It is alleged that Burns drove his car ahead of the fire chief's and refused to turn in to the curb to allow the fire apparatus to pass. His hearing will be held later in police court.

Not a Perfect Pleasure Resort.

"Why, hello, Alice!" exclaimed Gladys, as the two met. "This is the first time I've seen you since you went on your vacation. Did you have a good time?"

"Good time?" Alice repeated. "Gladys, I had a perfectly gorgeous time!"

"Then the resort was all you expected it to be?"

"All, and more," Alice insisted. "And the hotel where I stayed! It was absolutely the most exclusive place you can imagine! Nobody there but real swells."

"Mr. I don't know whether I'd like that or not," Gladys observed. "Wasn't there anybody at all there that you could snub?"

Paper for Dark Room.

Modern photographic plates are so sensitive that often a screen of red glass in the dark room is not sufficient to prevent fogging. A French photographic expert gives the following prescription for making a paper screen, which is 50 per cent more effective than red glass: Take unsized paper and dip it thoroughly in 100 cubic centimeters of water containing six grams of tartrazine. Then pass it over blottling paper and dry it. To render the coloring matter more adherent, a little gum arabic may be added to the solution.

HANDICRAFT FOR GIRLS

By DOROTHY PERKINS

(Copyright by A. Neely Hall.)

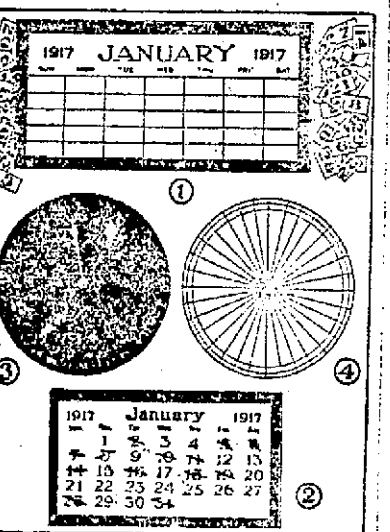

NEW YEAR'S DAY GAMES.

On a large sheet of wrapping paper mark the form of a calendar, with the year and month lettered across the top, and the days below. Below the lettering, rule six vertical and four horizontal lines to form 35 squares (Fig. 1). Then cut 31 paper squares of the size of the squares marked out, and number these from 1 to 31 (Fig. 2). Give players a numbered square and pin, then, one at a time, blindfold them, and direct them to pin their number in the right square.

Place a watch upon a table, then pass paper and pencil to all and have them write down parts of the watch that will complete the following: 1—Something used before? 2—What a cry-baby makes? 3—The support of a flower? 4—A season? 5—What a lawyer strives to win? 6—Dent with in arithmetic? 7—You have a pair of them? 8—Revolving portions of machinery? 9—Clear, transparent? 10—Adornments? Answers: 1—See ond hand. 2—Face. 3—Stem. 4—Spring. 5—Case. 6—Figures. 7—Hands. 8—Wheels. 9—Crystal. 10—Jewels.

Get enough calendar leaves to provide one for each player. Then cut the month, year and day lettering from the top of each, paste upon cardboard, and beneath the lettering rule horizontal and vertical lines as shown in Fig. 1, so there will be a square for each date. Then paste each strip of dates upon cardboard, and cut into small pieces, each bearing a date.

Place the pieces face downward, in a pile, give each player a card, and direct that the dates be drawn from the pile, in turn, and arranged correctly upon the card. Each player can draw in one turn as many dates as he can draw without duplicating. The player filling his calendar first is winner. Mount the leaves from calendars, one for each player (Fig. 2), then prepare a dial like in Fig. 3, with 31 figures around its edge, and pivot a hand from an old alarm clock at the center. Fig. 4 shows how to mark off the dial.

Place the dial in the center of a table, and have the players one at a time spin the clock hand. Then, whatever figure the hand points to, when it comes to a rest, must be crossed off with a pencil (Fig. 2). If the hand rests between figures 1 and 31, the player loses his turn. The first player to cross out all dates is winner.

If possible, get blanks from a telegraph office; if not, prepare simple ones (Fig. 1). Upon the lines provided for the message, letter F-A-T-H-E-R-T-I-M-E, leaving a space after each letter wide enough to fill a word in.

Give the blanks to the players, and ask them to write a ten-word message. In Fig. 2 is a suggestion, "Fats Attacked Three Hours Enemy Recapture Tomboy Infantry Moving Eastward." Fig. 3 suggests how a cake may be ornamented with cardboard figures and hands, to form a clock face.

Elks Hold Formal Dance.

The pre-holiday formal dancing party given by Kingston Lodge, B. P. O. Elks, Friday evening in their home on Fair street, was a decided social success, about one hundred fifty couples attending. Coming at such a delightful time of the year, the holiday spirit of cheer, hospitality and even "music in the air" was exemplified in its highest degree. The ballroom was a scene of exquisite beauty and on entering one was vividly impressed with the gaiety and cheerfulness. Holiday decorations abounded in the form of laurel roping suspended from the ceiling in canopy shape, with hundreds of lights glistening in its drapery. The lights were shaded in the reds and blues of the holiday season, with huge red crystal balls suspended from each, while the side walls and windows were artistically decorated with laurel wreaths and poinsettias. The stage was finished in a forest effect, with hemlock and pine trees, and so true to form were the decorations that a real "Elk" was seen in the forest. The Imperial orchestra furnished excellent dance music, each number being repeatedly encored. Delicious fruit punch was served throughout the evening and during intermission sandwiches and coffee were served. Dancing was then resumed, until 2 a. m., when the strains of "After the Ball Was Over" and "Home Sweet Home" brought the merry and happy evening's pleasure to a close.

RAIL LABOR BOARD TO LIVE A YEAR

Congress Can't Find Time to Do Away With It. Little of President's Program Can Be Carried Out This Session.
Washington, Dec. 9.—Sentence of death has been passed upon the Railroad Labor Board; but it appeared certain today there will be a stay of execution for at least a year.
Republicans' leaders in congress agreed today with President Harding that the board as at present constituted, has outlived its usefulness. But the method of its execution was a matter for divergent views.
A careful survey of the situation in congress disclosed to administration leaders that there is but slight hope of carrying out between now and March 4, more than a small part of the far-reaching recommendations made by President Harding in his message.

The house, under pressure, could accomplish the major part of President Harding's program, but it would avail nothing because of the jam in the senate. Next week the senate becomes embroiled in the fight over the Harding-Lasker ship subsidy bill. The result is in doubt with a few wavering votes holding the fate of the bill. But the fighting is certain to be prolonged and bitter. Senate leaders privately expressed the opinion today that if the senate could be whipped into passing the ship subsidy bill and the ten big supply bills in the ten working weeks that remain before March 4, they would be well-satisfied.

If the president's program is to be carried out, therefore, it would apparently necessitate an extra session of the new 68th congress, with its reduced Republican majorities, immediately after the expiration of the 67th on March 4.

President Harding is not in favor of an extra session next summer. He has expressed himself emphatically on this point, saying he believed the country was tired of congress and was deserving of a good long rest.
Nevertheless the president's message will be made the vehicle for a new drive for an extra session, conducted by Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, and his so-called "progressive" lieutenants from the grain belt, will conduct the drive.
It may be possible, administration leaders said today, to carry out of the next ten weeks, portions of the president's program dealing with agricultural relief through extension of farm credits, and also the constitutional amendment prohibiting child labor.
No attempt, however, will probably be made to open up the railroad situation.

HOT ASHES CAUSED FIRE ON TUG AT ISLAND DOCK YARD

Fire Department Called Out—One Overcome By Smoke.

The fire department was called to the Island Dock shipyard Friday night by a still alarm of fire sent in which fire was discovered on a tug undergoing repairs at the yard. The fire was caused by hot ashes in the pan under the boiler, according to Fire Chief Chipp. The blaze caused considerable smoke and one of the men on the tug was overcome by it but later revived. The quick response of the firemen was responsible for saving the tug and the damage was slight. The tug is owned by the Robertson Terminal Commercial Corporation.

CORSICAN BANDIT GREET'S TOURISTS

Entertains Them Cordially in His Mountain Retreat and Then Returns Call.

DENIES RANSOM STORY

Visits Hotel and Orders Up Champagne for Guests, Insists on Their Drinking It and Leaves Them Befuddled.

Paris.—Napoleon Romanetti, who in recent days has enjoyed great vogue in the Corsican woods, has protested indignantly against misrepresentations by a group of tourists. Returning to Paris from a tour of the islands, a party of French and Americans pictured him as a bandit of the old Corsican type and described how he "shot up" the town of Vizzanova. The tourists said that he demanded a heavy ransom from all the guests of the leading hotels.

Romanetti admits certain differences between himself and the gendarmes. These differences, he says, make the life of the brush more salubrious than the life of the town, but it is a matter between himself and the gendarmes. As for shooting up the hotel and ransoming the guests, here is his version of the affair.
Greets Them Cordially.

A party of tourists, climbing the mountain on muleback, stumbled upon his retreat. He greeted them politely and entertained them so cordially that the tourists invited him to return their call at their hotel. Romanetti, the following evening, like a true modern, self-respecting bandit, drove his high-powered car to the town and placed sentinels about the town before making his entry. This action spread consternation throughout. It was not until Romanetti assured the guests that there was no danger that they were quieted. He then proceeded to inspire the hotelkeeper with the proper idea of Corsican hospitality.

"A bottle of champagne for every guest," he shouted, giving his order. Every guest was obliged to drink his or her bottle. A second bottle for each one followed with the same injunction.

A Second Bottle Followed for Each.

Hours passed, the moon had sailed aloft, grandly, beautiful, serene and majestic; then with no hint of defeat, but seeming to know it was the withdrawal of its own majestic splendor that caused the deepening shadows, it slowly sank from sight below the hill, leaving the lawn in total blackness.

Great layers of fragrance hung heavily in the still air, and the little dark form had nearly covered the entire lawn with its mysterious snip-snip.

SUDDENLY REGAINS SIGHT

Girl Stricken Blind in Automobile Accident Recovers Sight as Quickly as She Lost It.

Philadelphia.—Miss Margaret Wisler has recovered her sight after ten days' blindness, which doctors had feared would be permanent. She was stricken blind in an automobile accident and recovered her sight almost as quickly as she lost it.

Miss Wisler was riding with John Smith in the latter's automobile. He was teaching her to drive and she had the steering wheel when another machine approached headed straight for them. The frightened girl swore the machine as quickly as she could to one side. They avoided a collision by inches.

"There was a sudden flash in front of my eyes," said the girl, describing her experience. "I had never been so frightened before. After the flash everything went dark for a moment. Then the flash came again and then all was dark again. I could see nothing."

Rest.

People's ideas of rest differ very considerably; what is rest to one man may be hard work to another. The great thing is to have a change of occupation to get away from one's ordinary tasks, whether these be golf or business, and to relax the mind in whatever way may be most grateful. Many will find this relaxation in religion or in games. Wiser people will find it in both. But the wisest of all are those who find it in the gentle exercises of the spirit and of the muscles, such as neither tyranize over nor distract their neighbors.

When Fate Was Kind

By LILLIAN F. LEONARD
(Copyright, 1922, by Lillian F. Leonard)

Tall spikes of mignonette misty with their blossoms stalked along beside low, old-fashioned garden plinks, for all the world like spars, stately gentlemen conducting, squatly ladies along the white gravel walk to the porch door.

Against the eaves of the cottage was a perfect forest of rose bushes, and as a king over them, dominating its gaudy but beautiful clippers of blossoms, trailed a Chinese banderole on its trellis, completely covering the eaves and making a sharp contrast against the white cottage with its green blinds.

An unexpected lawn sloped down to the street and on this lawn was staked a cow! An aristocratic moody, and a sure-enough practical moo, as evidenced by the show of being a big producer, also in the steady cropping of the grass in short, sharp swishes of the tongue. But as an ornament to the front lawn—

"Daddy," faltered eighteen-year-old Lila, with crimson cheeks and tears held in check, "do you have to stake Betty there? Can't someone mow the lawn? If not, I'll cut the grass with a sickle."

Mr. Blake glanced at his daughter from under shaggy brows.

"Now what is it? What new idea have you got into your head? Why can't Betty crop the lawn? Don't let me hear another word about it!" And Mr. Blake shoved his chair noisily back from the table and stomped out to the garden.

Tears of mortification gathered and rolled over, and Lila looked appealing.

Crouched Over on the Lawn.

ly at her mother who shook her head sadly and said with a sigh, "What your father says, Lila, has to go."

Rays of silver moonlight filtered through the trees, but lay strong and bright on the lawn, picking out the drops of dew like so many flashing jewels, as a dark, slender figure crept stealthily around the house and was soon crouched over on the lawn, gently moving and swaying to rhythmic snip-snip, continuous and monotonous.

Hours passed, the moon had sailed aloft, grandly, beautiful, serene and majestic; then with no hint of defeat, but seeming to know it was the withdrawal of its own majestic splendor that caused the deepening shadows, it slowly sank from sight below the hill, leaving the lawn in total blackness.

Great layers of fragrance hung heavily in the still air, and the little dark form had nearly covered the entire lawn with its mysterious snip-snip.

At last, with every muscle and joint screaming with pain, with soft hands cruelly blistered and smarting, the dark form gathered up the four corners of a sheet and carried it to the rear of the house, dumping its contents in a mound. Shaking and folding the sheet, the gnome-like figure now disappeared within the house.

Dawn. A joyous chorus of awakening birds. A gentle breeze scattering the layers of fragrance into breaths of wafted perfume. Roses! Mignonette! Old-fashioned garden pink! Mr. Blake awakened to their strong, spicy fragrance blowing full in his face.

He arose and dressed; for this man, hard, stern, embittered—had yet a side to his nature, deep, sympathetic, and loving all beauty wherever found. He always looked his roses over the first thing in the morning, as this was his own particular garden and he gave of his best to it. His early visit to his roses was like a morning prayer, a something sweet and beautiful to begin the day. And somehow all through the day's routine, prosaic and unpleasant though it might be, there would remain about the man a hint of gentleness, like the fragrance of flowers.

As his foot crunched on the gravel of the walk, a wan little face, with deep violet shadows under the eyes.

What Do Sharks Eat?

J. E. Bell, of the American Museum, after examining the stomachs of more than thirty tiger sharks, found most of them had fed on sea turtles, other sharks and large rays, porpoises, crabs, mackerel, sand and other fish.

peered anxiously from an upper window, Mr. Blake had halted, and with hands on hips, stood gazing in astonishment at the lawn. A flash of amusement whipped into his eyes, and he weakly lowered himself onto the doorstep, where he shook in silent mirth.

The head above craned sideways to view the lawn, but it looked all right from that vantage point, and why her father was lost in merriment for he never laughed aloud, but shook in silent mirth, she slipped down, the stairs and out to his side.

"Without a glance at the lawn she said her arms around her father's neck and laid her velvet cheek against his stubbly brown one. His eyes followed the slim arms to the hands, swollen and blistered. He cradled them gently in his own rough palms, while the amusement in his eyes faded, leaving only pain in its wake.

But Lila had caught sight of the lawn and stiffened in horror, for there were mountains and valleys, scented ranks and haunting ridges. Great tufts of grass, brazenly whipping in the wind as though saying, "Well, I squeaked through!" Patches of brown earth shrieking away from their own nakedness, tried to hide behind a row of stubble, but her father chuckled and said, "Looks like Paul's head the first time I shingled his hair. Mother had to go over it with the horse clippers. Guess daddy will have to kinder even it up with the scythe."

The ludicrous likeness to badly shingled hair got the better of Lila too, and they hugged each other and laughed together.

"But, daddy, my hands are paying the penalty for a better piece of work than that."

"Now tell daddy why you objected to Betty cropping the lawn."

"Well, you see, I overheard an auto-load of young folks hot and derisively remark: 'Pip the patent lawn mower.' Mr. Blake flushed under his tan. He, too, had heard the remarks. At the time he had ground his teeth in rage and spat out his anger to his pulling of weeds from about his choice garden truck: 'Lot of young upstarts! Won't have the price of a pint of milk at the end of their vacation!'"

He thought of it now, and of what the city had drained from his life—his hope of the future, of which he had long laid the foundation with buck-breaking toil and patient endurance, for a strong shoulder upon which to lay his aged hand in the last faltering steps toward the valley. His all, his first-born, his only son!

His face hardened. "What do you care, Lila, what those hoodlums say? They are here today and gone tomorrow. It seems odd to me that you make such intimate friends of the cottagers, it is only for such a short time."

Lila caught her breath. "Oh, but, daddy, you know what a delightful girl Phoebe is, even you like her, and she is my dearest friend."

"Yes, and the next thing you will be away to the city."

Lila knew the knife ranking in her father's heart, and felt inadequate to cope with the deep agony underlying his hatred of anything smacking of the city or city folks. She dimly surmised his great fear that made his hand tremble, of the danger that she, too, might take flight.

A tender gleam crept into her eyes. "Daddy, dear, I'll tell you my real reason. You know that Charlie is trying to put through a big real estate deal with those city people and he passes here every day with them, and you, yourself, will acknowledge that in the perfectly beautiful landscape picture that you have made, Betty is—well, certainly out of place. Like—Daddy, a worm on one of your lovely roses."

"Charlie? Charlie Swan?"

"Why, yes. There isn't any other Charlie, is there?"

At her naive confession her father smiled.

"But what has my front yard and cow to do with Charlie and his business people?"

"Oh, nothing much, only he points out this house as his fiancée's home."

The shadow of misery in Mr. Blake's eyes seemed to float off into space and his gaze looked dreamily into the future. Charlie Swan was the son of his life-long friend. There were two children in each family, Charlie and Ethel in his friends', and Paul and Lila in his own. So the elders had hoped, and he had dreamed of a twin to his own cottage, built on this beautiful site, and of his grandchildren playing about his chair—

An auto stopped and a young man sprang out, his quick, springy footsteps scattering the white gravel as he hurried up the walk.

"Where's mother? Hello, dad! Bonjour, Madeleine! All grown up and dad's not a day older."

"Martha—mother—mother!" rang out in three voices.

Paul was gripping his father's hand while Lila clung to him. Tears stood in his eyes like a mist, near falling.

"Well, well, dad. Charlie put that deal through slicker'n' goose-grease." (At the old country expression the father's eyes smiled. It was his boy still.) "Now we can be floated by—reancants for the rest of our lives and have that town cottage ready for Ethel and me by Thanksgiving."

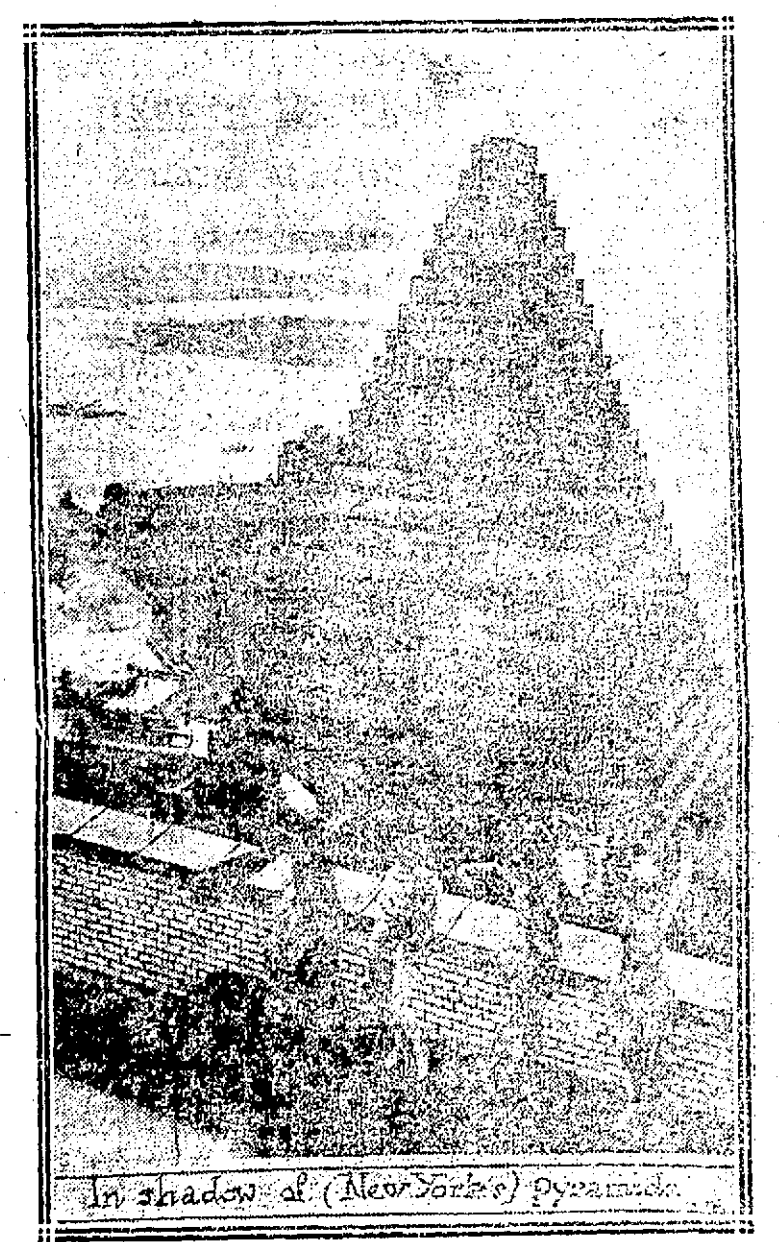

"What's all this hubbub in the wee sma' hours?" inquired a sleepy voice.

"Paul!"

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

by S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

Thriftful effort is personal efficiency, which depends largely on one's willingness to concentrate on one thing at a time.

Carelessness in the performance of a duty no matter how trivial if it may seem constitutes deceiving to do well something at a time. This involves not only the feat of accomplishing the definite undertaking, but it is a lesson in accuracy as well.

The mistake often is made of trying to do too much or of endeavoring to do too rapidly.

As a result of lack of time and energy are used up trying to correct mistakes made under pressure of undue haste, and a general condition of inefficiency results.

Observe the man who is succeeding in his work and you note that each task undertaken by him commands his entire attention.

It only takes one defective part to render powerless the greatest piece of mechanical construction ever invented, and it only takes one poorly accomplished task to render ineffective a long series of efforts.

Study concentration. It is thrift of energy, which is just as necessary to our welfare as thrift of money.

Opportunities to broaden and advance come only to those who prove their ability, step by step, and are willing to take infinite pains with each thing they do. Nature does not reward us with the genius of doing big things quickly and well. Progress must be acquired by diligent application and concentration, first upon the seemingly unimportant tasks and then on those of constantly increasing consequence.

LOVED TWO GIRLS, ONLY ONE WAY OUT

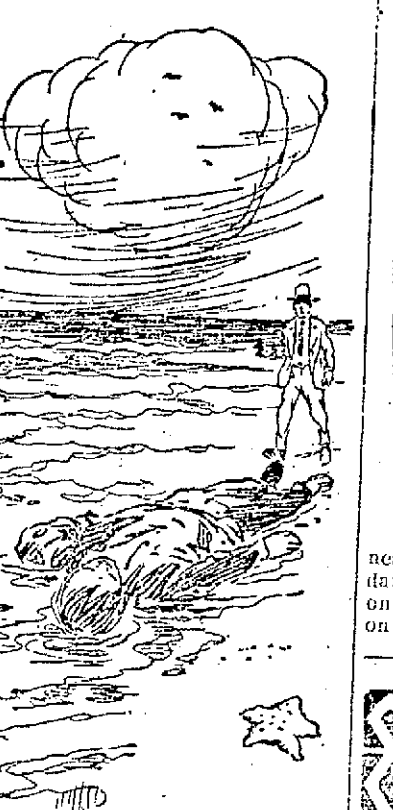

Hero of Chateau Thierry, Who Came Back Covered With Medals, Jumps Into Sea.

Los Angeles, Cal.—There was only one way out.

He was in love with two young women. One of them was a society girl, a thoroughbred, a wonderful, cultured, intelligent woman, one his parents would like to have him marry.

The other was but a child, sixteen years old, daughter of his father's gardener.

Eugene V. Campbell-Bennett, who saw service with the Eighteenth United States Field Artillery at Chateau

The Waves Rolled His Body on the Sands.

Thierry and who came back to California covered with medals, found it impossible to make a choice.

He was the son of E. J. Bennett, 611 One Hundred and Twenty-first street, Los Angeles, secretary and treasurer of the Woodward Bennett Packing company.

He thought he loved both maidens. And he could not choose. There was only one way out and that was out to sea.

A few weeks ago some of his clothing was found on the pier at Redondo beach. With them was a letter, 12 pages. Only one paragraph was made public.

"I have gone west. I think God will understand. I have long intended some day to swim until I was exhausted and could swim no more."

Yesterday the waves rolled his body on the sands at Redondo beach and his father identified it.

The society girl denied her engagement.

And the gardener's daughter fell on her knees and wept and said over and over again, "He was so good to me."

HAS WRONG MAN ARRESTED

Brooklyn Woman "Thought He Was My Missing Husband"—Doubtful in Court.

New York.—Mrs. May Harrison, Brooklyn, was certain James F. Pearce was her missing husband, Joseph Harrison, when she saw him playing cards a few days ago. She was not so sure in the Brooklyn family court, when her charge of desertion was heard before Magistrate Dooley.

She was asked flatly by Assistant Corporation Counsel Flanagan: "Is this man your husband?" "I'm almost sure," hesitating. "But, is he your husband?" "I can't swear to him out and out."

"Then why did you have him arrested?"

"Well, I thought then that he was Joe Harrison."

"The case is dismissed," said the magistrate. Pearce sighed and hurried from the courtroom.

STEALS DOGS FOR HIS BABES

Young Man Releases Most of Dogs in Kansas City Pound and Grabs Two for His Kids.

Kansas City, Mo.—Most of the dogs in the city pound were freed by a young man who appeared in a taxicab in front of the city pound, climbed over the main gate into the stockade and unlocked the cage. The young man jumped into the taxicab, taking with him a couple of dogs that caught his fancy, and departed. He said he wanted dogs for his two babies.

Woman Routs Bandit With Trusty Hatpin

San Francisco.—As a weapon of defense Mrs. Horace O. Little is recommending to her friends the useful and at the same time deadly hatpin. Returning to her home, she was stopped by a footpad who demanded her money. Four jabs with her hatpin discouraged him and he took to his heels. She reported the incident to the police.

Concerning Riches.

There is a burden of care in getting riches, fear in keeping them, temptation in using them, guilt in abusing them, sorrow in losing them and a burden of account at last to be given up concerning them.

Eleanor & Helen O'Sullivan, etc.

The Misses Eleanor and Helen O'Sullivan, beautiful Irish girls, are so nearly alike even their own mother cannot tell them apart. THIS IS AIMED AT LOAFING FURNACE

How to Get Most Out of Heating Apparatus Explained—Look Out for Boiler Flame.

If people knew how to get the most out of their furnaces, much fuel would be saved, say household management specialists at the state college of agriculture at Ithaca.

For example, the boiler flue should be cleaned every week or two with a long-handled metal brush. An eighth of an inch of soot on the heating surface of a boiler is estimated will make the coal bill more than a fourth higher. If the chimney is cleaned once a year, and often when soft coal is used, much fuel will be saved and fire hazard lessened.

Authorities agree that at least two degrees less heat are needed where the air is moist; some even claim that a room may be kept comfortable at ten degrees lower. Moist air also is better for health. Four or five gallons of water a day are said not to be too much to evaporate in the average house.

For the house with a hot air furnace, a big water pan with a large surface of water exposed is needed; this should be set well up in the warm air space to allow rapid evaporation. It should be placed over the combustion chamber with its bottom at least two inches above the top of the chamber. The pan may be kept filled automatically with a pressure water system. A good humidifier can be bought for spraying the heated air as it leaves the furnace. Jars of water kept over the registers or pans of it kept inside the registers are of some help.

For steam or hot-water heaters, pans designed especially for the purpose, which fit behind or on the radiators, may be bought.

Each radiator should have one and it must be kept constantly clean and filled. Wicks or a pad of absorbent material hanging behind the radiator with one end in the pan, or sheets of asbestos paper under the pans, with one or two needle holes punched in the pans, increase the evaporation.

Supper At Lake Katrine.
 At Lake Katrine Grange Hall on Tuesday evening, December 12, a supper will be served, consisting of sliced ham, scalloped potatoes, brown baked beans, apple sauce, jellies, jams, pickles and cakes, pie and coffee.

Odd Indian Wedding Custom.

Among the Gaves of India, instead of the bride pleading unwillingness to marry, the groom plays the role of the one who does not wish to wed, and who is forced into submission.

The Gaves woman calls at the house of the man of her choice, and "pops the question" to his mother. The mother then negotiates with the father and her son, telling them what she would be member of the family offers in pigs and beer for a husband.

Great grief is shown by the parents of the groom on the wedding day. Sometimes their grief exhibits itself in such loud bursts of sorrow that the Gaves bride must bribe them to be less holier-than-thou by offering more beer and pigs. If they play their cards well the wedding day of their son brings them much of value.

THE GARDEN OF THE GODS

IN THE nesting vales and on the grassy plains which lie at the foot of the Great White mountain that points the way to heaven lived the Chosen People. Here they dwelt in happiness together. And above them, on the summit of the mighty peak, where stands the western gates to heaven, dwelt the Manitou.

In order that the Chosen People might know of his love, the Manitou stamped upon the peak the image of his face, that all might see and worship him. And there each day the Chosen People came to pray and worship, where the first bright rays of the rising sun embossed the image in their golden glow. There in happiness they dwelt, their realm extending just as far as they might see the face of Manitou over hill and plain. And the land was fair and the chosen tribe was envied by all the dwellers of the plains who knew not Manitou.

But one day, as the storm clouds played about the Peak, the image of the Manitou was hid. Low hanging clouds swept down from out the sky and crept to earth in mist and fog and rain, and the happy, smiling face of Manitou was hid, and none could see it. And down from the north swept a barbaric host of giants, taller than the spruce which grew upon the mountain side and so great that they shook the earth with their strides.

With the invading hosts came terrible beasts, unknown and awful in their mightiness, monstrous beasts that would devour the earth and tread it down. And as they came on the Chosen People were frightened, and in their fear they fled to the Holy Mount, for in the sight of their frantic foes they were as grasshoppers.

As the invading tribes came on, the Chosen People fell on their faces and prayed to Manitou for aid. Then came to pass a wondrous miracle. The clouds broke away and sunshine smote the peak. And from the very summit, looking down upon the valley and the plains appeared the Manitou himself. Sternly he looked upon the invaders, and as he looked the giants and the beasts turned into stone.

As then they stood, the giants stand today. Their scattered bands, now rock of red and brown, are found to east and north, time-worn and scarred, with legs deep buried in the drifting sands. Some bolder than the rest are near the mount, and some are far away in sheltered, canons as if they sought to hide. Some hold their shields uplifted as if to meet the stony gaze of Manitou, while others, crouched in horror, were struck dumb and turned to stone there where they stood. The beasts the giants drove are stranger still—big, clumsy elephants with clumsy trunks; camels and massive bears and timid deer; smooth, glossy beaver with flat, scaly tails; huge frogs and timid turtles. All were changed and stand today as they stood then when, living, they defied the Manitou.

They covered all the valley—these living men and beasts now turned to stone. And if you doubt this story, go and see them standing there today as they stood then. Time worn and gray they are from countless storms, half-buried in the sweeping sands, and yet if you look closely you can see their forms, the giants and the beasts that hoped to steal the land where dwell the tribesmen who were our fathers.

When the white men came they called the spot the Garden of the Gods, because, they say, the rocks are great and odd; but we who know the story of the race still call it "Valley of the Miracle," for here it was that Manitou gave aid to save his chosen people and left there those rocks and forms of men all turned to stone, as warning to all of us who may some time attempt defiance to him and his commands.

Note—The Utes for years lived on the eastern slope of the Rockies, with their big town situated near what is now the city of Colorado Springs. This legend refers to the Garden of the Gods, just outside the city of Manitou—a spot that has become world famous for the unique beauty of its rock formations.

Faulty Memory.

Tommy was at the office with daddy for the first time in several months. It was always a gala event for Tommy, for daddy was the boss and he could do most anything he wanted to. And then everybody made over him and brought him things and he had a general good time.

"Hello, there, Tommy!" one of the clerks greeted him. "My, but I'm glad to see you! And how you have grown since you were here last time!"

"Mamma says I'm getting to be quite a big boy," Tommy admitted. "I'll say you are!" the clerk enthused. "I wonder how tall you are now, anyway."

"Well, mamma measured me the other day, but I've forgotten just what it was," Tommy informed him. "I'm either three foot seven or seven foot three—I'm not sure which."

Man's False Gravity.

There is a false gravity that is a very ill symptom; and as rivers which run very slowly have always more mud at the bottom, so a mind that is in the constant course of a man's life is the sign of a thick bed of mud at the bottom of his brain.—Kaville.

KINGSTON LOSES ITS THIRD GAME

The local league leaders in the state basketball circuit lost to Amsterdam, the tall-end club, at the latter's court Friday evening, by a 22 to 19 score. The result of this game proves that basketball also has its uncertainties. Benny Borgman was again the best scorer with twelve points to his credit. Wassmer made the most points for the winners. Referee Davey was the eleventh man. Amsterdam had a lead of six points at the close of the first period, score 14 to 8. The Amsterdam rosters were very partisan and made life miserable for the referee and the Kingston players.

DRAGGED TO DEATH BY MADDENED COW

Eight-Year-Old Pennsylvania Boy Meets Horrible End on Father's Farm.

Sunbury, Pa.—Joseph Mazel, eight years old, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mazel of Point township, this county, and living on a farm, was dragged to his death by a frightened and excited cow, which the lad, with other companions, had released from a stake in the field where she had been pasturing.

The lad's death was horrible in the extreme. In some manner, the boy dropped the chain, which was fastened around the animal's neck, and in doing so, it caught about his ankle, held him fast. He was unable to extricate himself as the cow dashed across the field to the woods, where it plunged through the heavy underbrush, dragging the screaming child. When it got through the woods the cow crossed another field and waded through a small creek in the field. It did not stop until it reached the barn. The mother ran to the lad's rescue and loosened the chain, but it was too late to do him any good. Coming in contact with the underbrush and stones, the child's skull was fractured at the base of the brain, several ribs were broken and he was otherwise internally injured. He was rushed to the Mary M. Packer hospital, but died shortly afterward.

JUDGE POMMELS WIFE BEATER

Magistrate Hands Defendant Pair of Black Eyes in Addition to Fine.

Wilkesbarre, Pa.—A man charged with wife beating here had both eyes blackened by the magistrate, who ended the incident by imposing a $10 fine. The magistrate, Alderman Edward Burke of Princeton, had heard only part of the wife's testimony when he shouted, "I am going to see how he likes it," and, jumping over his desk, ordered Anthony Azakas, the defendant, to stand up. As Azakas did so the magistrate hit him a sharp blow over the left eye. He fell, but was ordered up again and received another judicial punch over the other eye, which once more sent him to the floor. Azakas promised never to strike his wife again.

SHOW WINDOWS FORECAST XMAS

The show windows of the various department stores in the city are now beginning to take on a Christmas-like appearance and many of them are very attractive. Naturally every store is decorated in a different manner and each one presents a distinctive front. However, there is one fact that stands out throughout the city and that is that the majority of the stores are getting away from the idea that to present an attractive show window they must put a sample of everything that they have in the store in their respective windows. The show windows which stand out above all others in the city are the ones which are decorated in a simple manner with just enough things in the window to complete the desired picture and to attract the attention of the casual passer-by.

The fact that the windows are being decorated in this manner will not only help the individual merchant but it is also an indication to the stranger that Kingston is a modern city and does not hold to the "country store principles" of decorating.

Bamboo a Good Food.
The Bureau of Plant Industry says that natives of the Far East have eaten grass in the form of edible bamboo sprouts for many years. This tender sprout can be prepared for the table in the same manner as asparagus and is deemed by some to be a delicious spring vegetable. Bamboos, according to scientists, is not a tree, but a giant grass. It grows like asparagus, the new plants forming from the original roots.

Reassuring.
Promt Wife (to nervous friend in automobile)—I feel so safe with George driving, now that he has joined the Red Cross. He is learning first aid, and knows where all the hospitals are.—London Opinion.

Explaining Ship's "Log."
In olden times the speed of a ship was measured by putting a piece of wood through the water. The name "log" has stuck to the mechanical devices now used to measure the speed of a ship.
